Carson High Student Wins Trip to Capital

Richard Hughes, a 16-year-old Carson High School senior, has been named a winner in the KABC-TV-sponsored Freedom Train essay contest. Hughes was one of some 700 students to enter the contest.

The Carson senior's essay, "The Declaration of Independence," won an all-expense paid vacation to Washington, D. C. Richard and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hughes of 170 E. 229th St., will take the trip during Easter vacation.

The essay contest asked students to write on the question: "Which of the 40 Freedom Train documents would have made the best news story had today's means of mass communications existed then?"

"The Declaration of Independence would have moved people all over the world, though none of them would have taken it too seriously," wrote the youth in the award-winning essay.

Hughes was given the award in ceremonies held at Carson High. The presentation was taped for television. Hughes read his essay to an assembly of Carson High students.

Young Hughes also received his personal copy of the 40 Freedom Train documents and an American flag. The school also received an American flag.

Hughes was prompted to enter the contest by his English teacher, Robert Edlin.

The other award-winning essay was written by a student from St. Bosco High School.
